

ALEX MACKENZIE is a Vancouver-based media artist working primarily with 16mm analog film equipment and hand processed imagery. He creates works of expanded cinema, light projection installation, and projector performance. He was the founder and curator of the Edison Electric Gallery of Moving Images, the Blinding Light!! Cinema and the Vancouver Underground Film Festival. Alex was an artist in residence at Atelier MTK in Grenoble, France, the Struts Gallery/Faucet Media in New Brunswick, Cineworks' Analog Film Annex in Vancouver, and Daimon in Gatineau. Alex co-edited Damp: Contemporary Vancouver Media Art (Anvil Press 2008), and interviewed David Rimmer for Loop, Print, Fade + Flicker: David Rimmer's Moving Images (Anvil Press 2009). He is a founding member of the Iris Film Collective in Vancouver.

press kit | alex mackenzie

“Alex Mackenzie is the unequivocal master of contemporary Canadian expanded cinema: using rare and outdated technology with the deft touch of a visual alchemist, Mackenzie spins his stunning and mesmerizing anti-narratives using the detritus of cinematic history to create a completely unforgettable, and undeniably powerful, alternate vision.”
Deborah de Boer, Antimatter Film Festival

“MacKenzie is a key player in the revival of expanded cinema forms, having performed an array of super 8 and 16mm multiple projection works over the last twenty-five years. His projects stretch the possibilities of the analogue form, manipulating images to beyond our received expectations.”

Chris Kennedy, Early Monthly Film Segments

intertidal

“A bitter-sweet celebration of the beauty and power of a natural world which we are so quickly using up. The power of its forthright reflection of the natural world. In an era where so much media threatens to control, pacify or overwhelm its viewer, Mackenzie understands that less is more.”

Owen O’Toole, Wide Open Cinema

“Film performance, aka live cinema, injects the static projection of images with the immediacy -- and risk -- that attends in-the-moment creation. One of this bubbling genre’s most celebrated pioneers, Canadian experimental film manipulator Alex MacKenzie...employs two 16mm analytic projectors to slow, morph and freeze his imagery, conjuring the kind of ephemeral sensations one rarely encounters at the movies.” -Michael Fox, KQED Arts

“Part naturalist journal, part poetic travelogue, MacKenzie’s masterful handmade film work captures the rugged beauty of the west coast and its delicate cycles of marine life. Speeds shifting with the tides, vintage projectors rumble as we are piloted through hidden passages to remote inlets on a timeless voyage of discovery.”

Todd Eacrett, Antimatter Film Festival

the wooden lightbox

“...[MacKenzie’s] work often has an otherworldly quality, as if we were seeing images for the first time...his process allows for the re-entry of a sense of wonder, what theorist Walter Benjamin once referred to as the promesse de bonheur, or the utopian promise of technology that can only be reproduced through an artistic reinvestment in the hidden possibilities of a medium. Through his rediscoveries, MacKenzie takes us back to the birth of the moving image...”

Chris Kennedy, Strategies of the Medium III: In the Dark

“The Wooden Lightbox is about remembering, about throwing ourselves back to a time when audience expectation was open, with the projection of films equally non-rigid. The degraded quality of the images, often created through the alternative emulsions and hand processing of the film, helps to reinforce the notion of lost memories and decaying history. By reviving some of the technical approaches... Alex preserves some of the spirit of that past and shares the adventure of invention with the contemporary audience.”
Gerald Saul, Experimental Film Review

“An ephemeral highwire track through the cinematic unconscious and an elegy to 16mm’s passing future. Amid the increasingly commodified, rhythmically challenged, digital age of projected images, MacKenzie exhibits genuine commitment to film’s outmoded apparatus, material fragility and musical cadence. Parallax is cinema to be played (with); it requires a different kind of engagement, in which the viewer becomes actively aware of celluloid’s fragile, fleeting magic.”
Brett Kashmere, Synoptique

“MacKenzie orchestrates a sumptuous, stunning collage of moving images and sound which walks a tightrope between control and chance, order and chaos, permanency and change—reminding us of the fragile, ephemeral nature of film and ultimately, of course, of life itself.”
Larissa Fan, Take One Magazine

this fleeting

“A 22-part retake on the empire of family, going back through a single family’s archive and relooking at the moments, the gestures of inclusion and exclusion, the way they’ve managed to say yes with the camera. These home movies were originally made between 1948-1957 and feature bathing beauties, parades, cars, trips abroad and much much more. Relive the dream.”

Mike Hoolboom, Filmmaker/Writer

“MacKenzie’s ‘silent movie with sound’ favours images from this collection of home movies that are often the failures: when the unknown amateur filmmaker breaks with the conventions of image-capturing through camera error, overexposure or poor focus, it is these ‘accidents’ that are explored and the film becomes more of a graphic entity, imposing a water colour beauty and a depth of colour to this early Kodachrome family album...”
Jörg Meyer, Kieler Nachrichten

nightsky

“The sheer virtuosity of MacKenzie’s live film performance is enough to blur the line between cinema and historical re-enactment. NIGHTSKY unfolds like a window-seat view of a return voyage to the sea of tranquility, its images accumulate, overlap and recede with mesmerizing calm, sea and sky gradually yielding to a horizonless black space teeming with stars and satellites and fellow sojourners. Frail souls like us, blanched and zealous faces barely visible behind their visors, the grainy, re-photographed and hand-processed found footage of Armstrong et al evokes more than the (admittedly exquisite) pathos of watching an excessive century’s grandest icons nearly vanish before our eyes. Earthbound in the mortal intimacy of an obsolete “home-movie” technology and the all-too-human touch of MacKenzie’s performance, we surpass nostalgia. This is history - that which is made only when reproduced - the vital urge to comprehend what has not been lived, to find meaning in the abandoned fragments of mere grandeur.”

Jeremy Rigby, Director, Media City Film and Video Festival

The performance/screening of NIGHTSKY at Innis was one of the understated festival hits that make Images what it is. Alex MacKenzie’s haunting multi-projector invocation of our own projections of the romance, mystery, science and wonder of space was perfectly matched by Haco’s real time score which seemed to compose a shifting space-scape of fusing and decaying neutrons and space dust made audible.

somber

“Recognizing the beauty of the blurred, unfixed, and fleeting, MacKenzie indulges its potential for aesthetic effect, in contrast to the sharp focused (seamless) spectacle to which we have become accustomed in the movie theatre and on television... SOMBER confronts our desires and our implication in our own repression by thwarting our expectations.”

“Using experimental masking and filtering techniques, persistence-of-vision sleight-of-eye and shadowplay, this live show features stunning original hand-processed super8 film and manipulated super8 footage.”

“A thrilling re-use of old technologies, a profound understanding of archival images, and a rigorous juxtaposition and re-framing of voyeuristic themes...drop-dead beautiful and essential viewing.”

blind light / in security

“...[Mackenzie’s films] play upon the phantasmagoric qualities of old images or styles. They confirm the intuition that film images may only be dream-like anymore by evoking a cinematic past...these are obscure corners of our culture and experience, and the damaged surfaces and faded textures of salvaged images effectively convey the failures and violence which are central to so many of the stories being told.”
